

proximities is determined by at least one of the following factors: number of hops, congestion, noise and loss on a network segment, and charges incurred to send.